DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cormen, "Introduction to algorithms" in view of Blaauw, David et al., "Removing user-specified paths from timing graphs".

2. As for claims 1, and 18, Cormen discloses the invention substantially as claimed, including a method/computer system for generating code for Generating edge masks to annotate edges in a graph that represents at least a portion of the user design, the edge masks indicating whether a source point and a destination point are reachable from a corresponding one of the edges [pg. 477, section 23.3];
Performing at least one depth first search along a time critical path in the graph between the source point and the destination point [pg. 477, section 23.3].

Cormen does not specifically disclose the at least one depth first search being prevented by the edge masks from analyzing paths that do not connect the source and the destination points.

Blaauw discloses preventing the analyzing of paths that do not connect the source and the destination points [pg. 270-271, Introduction, and Section 2].

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine the teachings of Cormen and Blaauw because adding Blaauw's prevention of analyzing paths the do not connect the source and the destination points would have improved Cormen's algorithm by isolating and removing certain edges from the graph without removing true paths, therefore optimizing the timing analyzing process in design [see Blaauw, pg. 270, right hand side].

3. Claims 2-17, and 19-31 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

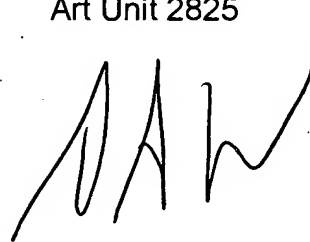

4. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record fails to disclose at least the step of calculating slack and slack ration values for edges in the time critical paths; and if delay along any of the time critical paths exceeds the user timing constraint, modifying placement of the user design within the programmable integrated circuit using the slack and the slack ratio value.

5. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Stacy A. Whitmore whose telephone number is (571) 272-1685. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Thursday, alternate Friday 6:30am - 4:00 pm.
